Spun Gospel

A Big City Lights Production

Hosted by Danny Howell

The weekly radio show that features the BEST in local and non-professional Southern Gospel talent from all over the world!

FACT: The music industry is one giant "Catch-22" - Artists can't get airplay unless they're on the charts; but they can't get onto the charts without airplay!

This program is designed to bridge that gap.

Artists send in their professionally-produced CD. We select the best songs by the best artists submitted to feature on our weekly show. If record producers, churches, or large venue management happen to hear something they like, they contact us. We put them in touch with the artist. From there, who knows!?!?

Our show features top-notch Southern Gospel music at a fun pace, with a level of production quality that is absolutely unrivaled!

NO FEES! America's Home Spun Gospel is 100% barter. Your station simply airs the network commercials included in the production. The station has six minutes of local avails during each show.

America's Home Spun Gospel

A Big City Lights Production

DANNY HOWELL, Host

Danny has been in Southern Gospel music all his life. Danny's father and mother were in music years before he was born. At the age of about five, Danny began singing in the Little Family Group in the mountains of North Georgia. At the age of 19, he began directing music in churches, and continued for 42 years as Director, and the choirs always sang Southern Gospel music.

During these years, Danny also sang in quartets and trios, and presently sings with Ruth Martin as a duet known as "Heritage Sounds."

In his heart, he has a goal of promoting local and non-professional singers via concerts and his weekly radio show. This show started out as "Homespun Gospel," and rapidly became extremely popular with the listening audience. The show aired each week on three radio stations in the Atlanta market.

After a brief hiatus, this popular show is back once again as "America's Home Spun Gospel." Once again paired with Executive Producer Randy Abel, who was the Program Director at the station that originally carried "Homespun Gospel," Danny is now seeing his goal unfold right before his eyes.

The all new "America's Home Spun Gospel" is produced in the state-of-the-art studio of Big City Lights Productions, just south of Atlanta. With the advent of digital editing, the Internet, and streaming audio, "America's Home Spun Gospel" can be heard by anyone, anytime through the web site at www.homespungospel.net

RANDY ABEL, Executive Producer

Randy has been producing and engineering radio broadcasts since 1991, including live sports remote radio and live remote broadcasts.

He became Program Director at a Southern Gospel station in the Atlanta market. It was there that he met Danny Howell, and began working on the weekly radio show, "Homespun Gospel." The show proved to be among the most popular shows on the air during that time.

Randy left the station four years later, and went on to PGA TOUR Radio, where he engineered a 2-day-per-week show for PGATOUR.com, and produced hourly Leaderboard Updates for the network.

Randy is currently the on-site engineer for the Atlanta Thrashers Radio Network, where he engineers broadcasts from Philips Arena. He also maintains numerous web sites, including homespungospel.net and funseekers.net (The Ludlow Porch Show).

Missing the weekly Southern Gospel show that he worked on with Danny Howell, Randy built a studio and launched Big City Lights Productions. The production company has re-launched the show as "America's Home Spun Gospel," and is currently aired on radio stations around the world, as well as streamed 24/7 via the web site.
